DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The term "pause control interface" was never described in the specification.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goss (2002/0185917) and Arenhold (3,602,666). Goss teaches a control interface (20) to interconnect an audio device (18) to a power source (12) and uses a timer (24) to control the operation of the audio device. He also teaches a power input connection (31, 38) comprising a power cord (32, 39, 34). He also teaches a plug/receptacle assembly (male plug - 41, female receptacle - 12) for connection in series between a power source (12) and a supply cord (34), and the supply cord is connected to the control interface (20). He also teaches that the audio device (18) could be a tape player, compact disk player, optical disk player, or audio-visual video disk player ([0006], [0029], and Fig. 2). Goss fails to teach a push-button switch to connect the power source to the audio device. Arenhold teaches a control interface (9) having a manual push-button switch (i.e. momentary contact switch) (1) on a power cord between a power source and a load that when pressed completes a circuit which allows power to be supplied to the load (last 3 lines of Abstract; Col. 1, lines 19-22, 46-47). The switch is in series with a conductor of the power cord/plug/outlet (2₁, 2₂). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to incorporate a manual push-button switch into the control interface of Goss' invention so that one could quickly and efficiently control the power supplied to the audio device without having to reprogram the timer or use a key.
